The youngest look of me

I grew up in uncertain way. I met random people, I have many things. I sing a lot, I dance a lot. I'm living wisely on my own. I'm obsessed with some things or people. Sometimes I feel happy, sometimes I feel sad. I get hurt in unpredictable way. I can be so dangerous, I can be so gentle. There's a time when I feel so light living my life like no burden could take me down and fly like feather in windy meadow. But against that, there's a time when I feel like a total loser who cannot face the mirror to see the reflection of my own self, feel like I'm nothing in this big world, try to stay out of everybody's way, lock myself in my room and squat in the corner with my head down. In some extreme cases, I can break every glass or punch everyone in the face when I get mad like a moron. But due to prevailing norms I should control my emotion. Therefore, I turn those feelings into words, doodles, and photos. By then, I can still be free and throw my feelings out unmolested, even distract those uncomfortable feelings by work on something I'm interested in. And here's my trace.
